This Life in Trips is...

Meet Shaun - lover of memorable experiences, great food, and overall awesome times. Shaun lives to travel and aims to measure his life by the experiences gained through it. This Life in Trips is a collection of those experiences and includes travel tips, reviews, and stories to inspire and educate others who are looking to find more out of life and more out of travel.

How The World Became My Office

Before my first yearlong trip in 2006 my life seemed vanilla and unfulfilled. I had successfully worked my way into a comfortable situation with a cushy well-paid job yet felt lost and poor. Unhappy with what my life had become I put my career on hold and traveled. During that time away I found happiness and my true passion, good times and writing about them.

Once I returned to my normal day-to-day routine I quickly realized that living that life was not for me. To stay sane I traveled as much as possible and by any means possible. I quickly found that the corners of the earth are reachable no matter your budget. For the past 13 years I have written about my adventures that have taken me from the Arctic Ocean to the South Pacific. They have included football games in San Francisco and Buenos Aires. Rock concerts in the Pacific Northwest and water puppets in Hanoi.

2015-2017 was dedicated full time to This Life in Trips and all things travel. Since then I have been balancing travel consulting and freelance writing with part-time travel.

Working With This Life is Trips

- More than ever travelers are going online in search of advice, tips, inspiration, and planning help for their next adventure. Gone are the days of flipping through guidebooks. Instead, travelers are seeking out advice from travel bloggers who have first hand experiences to share.
- I work hard to build lasting partnerships with my clients and ensure that featuring their product or service is delivered in an entertaining and personal way. Putting a face and trusted reviewer behind well thought out words will always be more effective than unknown and potentially perceived as fake users of Trip Advisor, Yelp, or Google.
- My reviews and articles are tailored to promote what is best for the client while still maintaining opinions and experiences that are strictly my own.
- With an undeniable love of all things travel, my passion spills over into the destination, service, or product I am reviewing.
